
Both inputs enter the same interval machinery, which is what makes the null matched to the certified object.